A Mystery.

Some time in November last a stranger, giving his name as Dr. Baker, called on C. H. Mallory & Co., shipping agents, and purchased two passage tickets to Port Royal, S. C. One was made out in his name and the other left blank, the name to be supplied later, the stranger merely stating a lady would probably accompany him. He took passage on the vessel, as did also the lady for whom the ticket was purchased, but no one on board was aware of their acquaintance. When the vessel was less than a day at sea the lady took suddenly ill and died. During her sickness Dr. Baker tendered his services, but made no mention of being her friend or acquaintance. On account of the suddenness of her death the captain of the vessel was anxious to keep the body until they arrived at Port Royal, S. C., that an examination might be made, but decomposition set in and a burial at sea was necessary.

On his return to New York the captain made a report of the occurrence and nothing more was thought of it, as no suspicion of foul play in the matter was entertained. The dead woman's luggage was sent back to New York also and remained unclaimed. This circumstance created some surprise and search was accordingly made among her effects to ascertain her identity, so as to forward the things to her friends. From papers in her trunks it was learned that she had resided in Rockland, N. Y., and that her name was Jersey or one like that. Letters were sent to a daughter of the deceased, relating the story of her death and requesting her to send for the trunks. She responded in person, accompanied by her husband, and told the following story of her mother's absence:—

In November last, she said, her mother came to New York in company with Dr. Hammond, her father-in-law, who came to see her off to Europe for her health. She was wealthy, and drew from a bank in this city $11,000 with which to travel abroad. Since then they had heard nothing from her and were under the impression she had sailed as she intended until she received the letter from Mallory & Co. announcing her death and asking them to call for her effects.

Mallory & Co. would not deliver over the luggage to the claimants without positive proof of their right to receive it. For the purpose of obtaining what proof was necessary they returned to Rockland and procured proper papers. Yesterday was set for their return to New York with the proofs. They had no sooner reached here than a telegram from Rockland was received announcing the suicide of Dr. Hammond. This event shed a new light on the mysterious actions and sudden death of the lady, and detectives have the matter in hand for thorough investigation. The deceased leaves a large estate, of which her daughter is administratrix.—N. Y. Herald.

PREMATURE LAST WORDS.—A writer to the Louisville Courier-Journal tells the following amusing story of the late war: A single shot, followed by a loud shriek, told us that one of my best men, Bradley, was hurt. He proclaimed his agony with a loud voice, turned over on his back and commenced kicking so vigorously that the surgeon had difficulty in getting near him.

"Poor fellow!" said the doctor, as he saw a whitish liquid oozing out, "shot in the bladder. It is afraid it is fatal."

"Oh, my God!" said Bradley, "am I a dead man?"

"Keep up your spirits, my boy. Never say die," said Captain Johnson, kneeling kindly over him.

"Doctor," asked the wounded soldier, feebly, "will you write to my mother that I died bravely, doing my duty, with my face to the foe and that I thought of her when I was dying?"

"Yes," said the doctor, with dim eyes and a husky voice, "I will write to her and tell her, too."

But suddenly springing to his feet, with an indignant voice he said: "Why, confound it, man, you are not hurt a bit. It is only your canteen that is shot, and that the water from it. Get up, will you?"

Bradley raised up slowly, felt himself all over, and with an exceedingly foolish countenance crawled back to his position, amid the uproarious laughter of the whole regiment.

For months after that, on the march, in the camp, and sometimes in the night, you might hear a voice in one direction, demanding: "What shall I tell your mother?" and perhaps half a dozen responses would be heard, "Tell her I died with my face to the foe," and then Bradley would come out and hunt for the man who said it. He seldom found him, but when he did there was certain to be a fight.

A NEW CURE FOR DUELING.—Some of the continental nations are still troubled with the fashionable pest, and still engaged in devising expedients to eradicate it from their territories. Hitherto all such attempts have been unavailing at that one of the duelists who had the best of the field. The loser was possibly supposed to have paid a sufficient penalty in the sufferings entailed upon him by his wounds, or, if actually killed, escaped, as a matter of course, the vengeance of the law. But a government, which has carried out a similar severe sentence upon a certain count killed in a duel, close to Munich, by an officer of the royal army.

The old laws of the country recognize in duels only a sort of suicide, and condemn the persons killed in them to all the penalties attaching to suicidal acts. One of these consists in the denial to the defunct of the rights of burial. Accordingly, the body of the deceased count was carried off from the hands of those relations and friends who were about to perform the funeral rites and handed over to the dissecting room of the Munich hospital. Great efforts are, it seems, being made to secure the remains from this ignominious fate, and from an ignominious interment in the common burial ground. But if these attempts fail, it is expected that a death blow will be given to dueling in Bavaria. Should it be so, it will be strange how far more powerful the dread of humiliation after death has proved than the fear of judicial vengeance while alive.—London Globe.

Preparation for Out-door Games is now in order.

THE NEW FIELD GAME AT FRENCH'S.

"VEXILLO,"

(For the Flag.)

Or the Improved Method of Playing Croquet. The prettiest and most interesting lawn game ever invented. The players have an additional interest in this game over ordinary croquet, as each one has a flag to secure, making the game far more interesting and exciting. Nothing of Croquet is lost by Vexillo, as the players have all the play that croquet affords with the additional interest of securing their own flags and capturing those of the enemy.

Special attention is called to the INDESTRUCTIBLE CROQUET, with Rubber-ice Mallets. A much more scientific game can be played with this style of croquet than any other, as the rubber face on the mallet gives a certain elasticity to the stroke; besides carom shots can be made as in billiards.

EXCLUSIVE CROQUET, of Rock Maple, the cheapest and best in the market. Full sets, in neat box, from $2 a set up.
